Introduction:

Professor Steve Dutton is an artist and occasional curator based in the South West of England with a studio at Spike Island in Bristol. He works on both collaborative and individual projects. Currently, he is developing a new solo body of work under the working title "The Phantom Industry," which includes drawings, paintings, performances, sound works, moving images, animations, objects, installations, and texts. His practice is challenging to classify, moving between various media, materials, processes, and forms. It might be described as a form of language-based practice focusing on acts of reading, painting, speaking, writing, drawing, and imagining. His work has been widely exhibited nationally and internationally.
